

University to Honor Smuts With Degree

Special Convocation Will Be Held On January 2

TO VISIT MCGILL WHILE ON TOUR

Former Prime Minister of Africa Due at New York Shortly — Will Address League of Nations Society There—

General the Rt. Hon. Jan. Christiaan Smuts, former prime minister of the Union of South Africa will be granted an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at a special convocation to be held on Thursday afternoon, January 2 in Moyses Hall, announced the Corporation of McGill University at a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the Faculty Room of the Arts Building.

The South African statesman is widely known for his efforts in Empire building. General Smuts, the same man who in 1902 received from D. Haig, Colonel in the British Forces, a safe conduct pass to the peace conference at Vereeniging, was standing shoulder to shoulder with Field Marshal Earl Haig in opposing the German onslaught in the late world war. Today the destiny of Smuts is interwoven with the whole destiny of the British Empire.

As the chief reliance of Premier Lloyd George in the War Cabinet, a sign: though an unwilling one of the Versailles Peace Treaty, and the bearer of an olive branch from the British Premier to Ireland at one of the crucial moments, none today stands more firmly than the erstwhile Beer leader for the continuance of the Union of South Africa as one of the self-governing nations within the British Commonwealth.

Besides being a statesman and soldier, General Smuts is also a noted scholar. After commencing his studies in South Africa he went to Cambridge in 1901 where his success was unprecedented. The former prime minister is a profound student of philosophy and botany. In 1925 as President of the E. A. Association for the Advancement of Science he delivered the opening address at the Congress of that body. In 1926 he published a philosophical treatise called "Holism and Evolution."

Tours America.
General Jan Christiaan Smuts, called for New York City on December 4 to address a meeting of the League of Nations Society of New York and while in America will tour the principal cities of Canada and the United States, during which time he will visit McGill.

Other Business.
Other business discussed at the meeting of the Corporation was a restriction of the power of the Matriculation Board. Under its old constitution the board had the power of admitting students to the University. However in recent years certain Faculties were admitting their own students and accordingly the board was not functioning properly. Therefore it was decided to restrict the power of the matriculation board only the conducting of the entrance examinations.

Reports were received from the faculties of Arts, Applied Science, Medicine, Law, Agriculture, Dentistry.

Zero Weather Here

Cold Spell Expected to Last for Few Days

Winter really arrived at Montreal yesterday when the first zero weather of the year was recorded at the Observatory. The temperature is abnormally low for this time of the year. Tuesday's mean being ten degrees lower than the average. The barometer is still high, however, and it is expected that the present cold spell will last for only one or two days more.

It is not expected that the ground will be cleared before spring, although usually the first heavy snowfall is all melted away by this time. Although people are predicting a long, hard winter, the officials at the Observatory are confident that a break in the cold snap is coming soon.

France Confers Highest Honors On Local Men

He wrote a major thesis containing a detailed study of the growth and origin of the detective novel as a literary genre, for which he received the highest honourable mention.

Pierre Emile Renaud, formerly of Montreal received the Prix Vouters awarded by the Faculty of Law, Paris, for the best essay of the year on political science. The subject of M. Renaud's was a study of the economic origins of French Canada. M. Renaud is now with the Canadian Government at Geneva.

To Analyze New Political Trend

Political Economy Club Will Discuss Palestine

"Palestine and the British Administration" will be discussed to-night at the meeting of the Political Economy Club at 8:15 in the Men's Smoking Room of the Arts Building. Gordon Nelles, B. Com., and Lionel Rubin will deliver the papers.

The rising tide of Nationalism in the nineteenth century made a political reality of Zionism which was assured a political hegemony by the Balfour Declaration of Nov. 2, 1917. This declaration was ratified by the League of Nations shortly afterwards. Zionism seemed to have found an abiding place at last.

This state of mind was cruelly shattered by the recent Arab riots which have brought to the fore the following important questions: "Is the Mandatory system a cloak for the selfish designs of the large powers?" "Granted the desirability of Nationality, what is a Nationality and what is to determine it?" "Is Britain fulfilling her promises to the Jews in Palestine?"

In other words, the manifold theoretical problems of Political Science are in little Palestine given a concrete form and clamour for a decision. These will be the points touched upon, discussed and analyzed at the meeting of the club to-night.

Dr. Leacock and other members of the Department have promised to be present. All interested are invited to be present. Refreshments will be served.

Prof. McCullagh at Mechanics' Institute

Professor Paul F. McCullagh of the Department of Classics will deliver the regular weekly lecture at the Mechanics' Institute this evening. The topic of the address will be the "Last Days of Pompeii" in which the lecturer will discuss the private and public life of the Roman City of

Individual Does Not Give Proper Care To Health

Preventive Medicine Discussed by Dr. Fleming

IS OPTIMISTIC

Present Generation Avoids Many Diseases of Former Days

"The main problem of preventive medicine arises not from lack of scientific knowledge but rather from the difficulty of inducing the individual to apply the knowledge ready at his hand," declared Dr. Grant Fleming, professor of Public Health and Preventive Medicine at McGill in addressing the Trained Attendants Association of Canada at a meeting in Victoria Hall, Westmount, last night. In particular, Dr. Fleming emphasized the need of efficient health instruction and medical care for all persons, proper health instruction and periodic health examination of the apparently healthy individual.

Regarding the progress of health knowledge generally, the speaker pointed out the vast strides which have taken place of late years in the field of preventive medicine, by which he said, twenty years have been added to the expectancy of life of the ordinary individual.

Surveying the field in general, Dr. Fleming was not pessimistic. Many diseases common in the time of grandparents of the present generation are now scarcely ever heard of. In spite of the vast advance, however, fifty per cent. of all deaths could be postponed by proper preventive measures, he believed.

In the case of health departments, Dr. Fleming pointed out that certain measures can be taken in a community way to cope with disease. Up to the present time, rural districts have suffered the deficiency in this regard is rapidly being corrected.

Much controversy and considerable study has taken place on the question of adequate medical care for all persons, Dr. Fleming noted. Sometimes it is said that the very poor and the very rich are well taken care of while persons of moderate means suffer, he said. While it might be true that the rich are well served, he

Arts '32 Will Hold Banquet

Class Pins to be Distributed During Evening

An interesting departure in class activities will be tried out next Tuesday evening when Arts '32 holds its first class get-together. The scene of activity will be the Union Grill Room where a dinner and extensive entertainment will be on hand. The proceedings will start at 6:30 and end at the will of those who are present.

After dinner various skits and musical numbers will be provided for the entertainment. In this connection the entertainment committee wish to point out that anyone who has new ideas or wants to contribute to the entertainment can do so by speaking to R. H. Sellar, E. Cockerton, H. Boul-kind or Dave Lloyd.

A feature that will prove of great interest is the distribution of the class pins which will take place at the dinner. There will be no formal after dinner speeches to wait the members of Arts '32 to sleep, and they guaranteed a wide-awake evening.

This get-together is the first step really taken by a single class to promote class fellowship and create a class unit that will last even after the class itself has become history. Plans are forming for further social functions within the class of Arts '32 which will take place in the coming year. The entertainment committee wish to stress that the future of these class get-togethers will to some extent depend on the success of next Tuesday's dinner. The intra-class entertainment scheme is a new thing and the committee are anxious to make it a worthy one.

Klein Appointed

A. Watt when interviewed last evening, confirmed the rumour current about the editor of the McGill Daily. Owing to the resignation of K. N. Cameron, A. M. Klein will undertake the task of editor for the new magazine.

Aix-an-Provence Students Strike For More Study

Paris, Dec. 11—Students at Aix-en-Provence recently declared a week's strike because they were not getting enough Italian study, and formed a class which met in the city-hall at Aix under the direction of sympathetic professors who there gave them a course in Latin and Italian.

The students declared their intention of making the strike general if their claims for more study of Italian were not satisfied. The place in which they met during the strike is quite unfitted for the purpose, since it is usually used for weddings and, besides, so small that the students have to stand on the stairs.

Invite Women To Join Glider Club

Executive Decides to Admit Co-Eds to Membership

BEGIN WORK SOON

Material Already Ordered for Construction of First Glider

Women students may join the Glider Club! This decision was reached at a meeting of the executive held yesterday in the Union. There will be another general meeting tomorrow at 5 in Room 33 of the Engineering Building to which all those intending to join are invited.

Material for the building of a glider has already been ordered and it is expected that work will commence on Saturday. The intention of the committee is to have the work under supervisors who will be responsible for the progress.

It was decided that the best policy is to have membership open to all women right from the start, to avoid all difficulties about whether or not the co-eds have a right to join. It is hoped that the women will avail themselves of this opportunity and give the new club their support.

It is important that every member attend the meeting tomorrow as there is much to be done. One general supervisor and two assistants are to be elected so that work on the glider may start immediately, and plans will be made for the activities of the club during the winter. Material has been ordered through the Curtis-Reid Aircraft Co. and work will commence as soon as it arrives. The officials wish to have the machine completed as soon as possible so as to enable the members to get in some practice before the field becomes soggy in the Spring.

Will Throw Light On Soviet System

Former Red Official Will Address Labour Club

Mr. Louis Kon, formerly Trade Commissioner for the Russian Soviet Government, will address a meeting of the Labour Club on Tuesday, December 17th, in Strathcona Hall. Mr. Kon's subject, "What I saw in Russia in 1923-29" should throw considerable light on the existing economic system.

So many conflicting theories on conditions in Russia are extant that information from one who has come into intimate contact with the workings of the new economic and political order should be welcome.

Interested men and women students are invited to attend the meeting. Refreshments will be served.

Modern Poetry Permits Use Of Common Themes

Klein Speaks on Present American Aspect of Verse

NEW MOVEMENT

Economic Factors Tended for Development of Free Style

Illustrating the emancipation of the modern American poetry from its servitude to early Victorian ideas, and showing its development of a new diction to better cover its scope in the realm of literature, A. M. Klein spoke yesterday afternoon to the Literature Society in the Arts Building on Modern American Poetry. He attempted to cover the vast ground from both the historical and material aspects.

"Modern American poetry began with the free verse of Walt Whitman, though its form was not entirely necessary, and he could just as well have been shocked by the incursions of rhyme," said the speaker. "He came as refreshment to the philosophical tendencies," he continued, and pointed out that the mentioned poet actually started a new era in literature.

"The Lowell, the Taylors, the Bryants, and the Longfellow must have been shocked by the incursions of such plebeian as Twain, Whitman, Brecht, Hart, and Joaquin Miller," he pointed out, "since the characteristics of the pre-civil war period was Platonism and Attitudinism. From the golden rule they deduced the golden rule."

Came Like Wolf.

Walt Whitman came upon these academic poets like a wolf upon the fold, yelping barbarously, as the poet himself expressed it, and in 1860 issued his first volume "Leaves of Grass." He expressed his ideas and views in such words as scandalized the tutored poets and critics, and he illustrated this view by quoting "And the mouse is miracle enough to stagger sextillions of infidels." "For an earlier poet to convey such a dignified thought in such common words would have been sacrilege," Klein pointed out, "but to this hardy American, flushed with the idea of superiority of the common man, such expression was but to convey his ideas to the mass whom he represented."

Whitman was a man who could dare to "call forth the Muse from Greece and Ionia" and bade it submerge itself into the vast melting pot of American materialism and industrialism. "Placard 'Removed' and 'To-Let' on the rocks of snowy Parnassus," said that poet. Such exhortations on the part of a man in the middle of the nineteenth century could draw nothing but scorn at first, but upon further reflection, some of the critics began to realize their slavery to old doctrines.

New Support.

Further economic strife and crises, in the last quarter of the nineteenth century brought out new support to the advance guard of the new ideals and expression, and among these there hailed to the banner of free verse Bliss Carman, "Bliss that was Garman," as the speaker expressed it.

"During the nineties, and till the publication of the Poetry Magazine in

Delta Sigma To Hear Of Trips In Corsica

Prof. Adair Will Illustrate Lecture With Slides

An illustrated lecture on "A trip through Corsica with a Donkey" by Professor Adair of the History Department will feature the meeting of the Delta Sigma Society which takes place at four o'clock this afternoon in the R.V.C. It is hoped that an extra large attendance will be present as the lecture is expected to be both instructive and entertaining.

Professor Adair has travelled extensively and has the faculty of relating his travel experiences in a very interesting manner. Apart from subject matter Professor Adair has some very good slides which give some excellent views of the Island of Corsica.

The executive of the Society are particularly anxious that everyone who intends to come, be on time out of consideration for the speaker. As usual tea will be served at the close of the meeting.

TONIGHT'S CONCERT

ONE of the most looked for events in the musical world at McGill is the concert given by the Musical Association. Tonight will be the favoured time and the program that is to be presented at this semi-annual concert in Moyse Hall, from the appearance of the numbers selected, will be well up to standard of former years.

Under the inspiration that has come from the Conservatorium of Music for more student musical activities, there has been a revival of interest in this branch of the arts. The Sunday Evening Recitals have become so popular that last Sunday there were over two hundred turned from the doors. The Music Club has come back again to its old place in campus life and the University Band having expressed itself joyfully at the football games, has now turned its talents to concert music.

Grouped with these is the Banjo and Mandolin Club and all together they form the Musical Association, which will present the concert tonight. This will be the first of the two concerts which are given each year.

Montreal has often been looked down upon as being barren of musical talent, but surely this is only because there is not the appreciation shown. Where there is a demand there will always be that which is required to fill it. It may be that Montreal is not so fortunate in having sponsors for music as other cities are but if in the university there is no appreciative audience it does not augur well for the future of music in this city.

In university circles of Canada Hart House is well known for many things, but we would suggest that to the ordinary citizen the name immediately brings to mind the Hart House Quartet. It may be a far cry but someday Moyse Hall may be equally as prominent in recalling musical names. We hope so. We say that the university is a little world of its own, then it is up to us to create in our world an atmosphere that will be so contagious that the rest of the city will follow our lead.

STUDENT OPINION

EVERY once in a while some newspaper comes out with the statement that student opinion on any subject is definitely set in a certain direction. Reading such reports the average man is likely to think that all students think alike on every subject, that student opinion is something definite and crystallized, and that the opinion of any one undergraduate on any subject whatsoever, expresses the opinion of the whole student body. One might as well speak of world opinion. One might as well take the opinion of any one man as representative of the beliefs of all the civilized and uncivilized nations with all their various likes and dislikes, prejudices, hates, superstitions and religions.

In stating that student opinion has a certain trend many factors must be taken into consideration. The college or university is a world on its own. Men and women of many nationalities come here, presumably to learn, often merely because they have nothing else to do. Most of the social classes are represented from the man who must strive and struggle and work to earn a college education to the student who has known and still knows all the luxuries of life. And yet in thinking of student opinion some people somehow, perhaps unconsciously, take the attitude that all these various classes of students think alike on many topics; that the opinion of the poorest student is the same as that of the richest, that the beliefs and prejudices of the loafer concur exactly with those of the scholarship man.

It comes as a shock to some people to learn that there are some students who do not like Shakespeare, that some prefer jazz to classical music while others would rather listen to some selections from Beethoven rather than to the rhythmic records of a dance-mad age. It is absurd to think that a mass of students each individual different from the other, should think alike on everything, just because they go to the same university. It is just as ridiculous as imagining that every one in the world likes coffee. No one would expect every man to drink coffee because one man likes the flavor. Yet if one college man were to express a liking for the beverage there are some people who would believe that college students in general preferred coffee to all other drinks.

GEN. SMUTS' VISIT

IT is unfortunate that the visit of the Rt. Hon. Jan Christian Smuts, former Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, to Montreal on January 2nd, will not coincide with a period when the students are taking lectures. The corporation of the University has decided to confer upon him the honorary degree of doctor of laws and has called a special convocation for that afternoon.

General Smuts is the leader of the Imperial group in South Africa and is recognized as one of the outstanding statesmen which that country has produced. General Smuts has been quite recently in England where he delivered the Rhodes Lecture. Coming to this continent in the interests of the League of Nations he will make a tour of the important cities, and Montreal and Toronto are to be included.

Although for the majority of students the privilege will be denied to give a welcome such as was accorded to Premier Ramsay MacDonald, we have no doubt that those who are resident in the city at that time will make full use of the opportunity, and start the New Year aright.

CAESAR'S GALLING CHORES

HE MEETS A DILEMMA

On a certain day Caesar made a forage at dusk so that he might obtain bread and jam with which to study during the evening which was about to approach. He walked rapidly down University Street, in the meanwhile wishing that he had a glider, for by this means he would be able to make expeditions with speed as great as possible. He entered the Dominion market place and saw there many barbarians bartering dollar-bills for food.

Moreover accordingly he suddenly observed one fifth of his army buying provisions, and immediately summoned that man to him, after which he spoke as follows. Namely, he announced that there was much work for the army to do; in the first place they must stop missile-throwing by hecklers when the great minds of the University stood up in the forum to speak, for he pointed out, there was no man who could be eloquent if foreign matter landed in his mouth every time he opened it to say something clever. That portion of his army with whom he was conversing asked him if he could suggest how to stop warfare of such a kind; Caesar said the army might carry on a campaign against juvenile hecklers through the medium of the "Daily", but was reminded that at this time several noted personages were using the correspondence column to carry on private quarrels, and that indeed, moreover, it would not stop for some time, as certain important females were engaged in this strife, and so long as they had nothing to say, they would say it in as many words as possible, moreover at the same time with as much as obscenity and scorn as their pens could command.

Caesar thereupon suggested that the army attempt to censure and eradicate letters from male warriors regarding the bone of contention, for he pointed out that in this way the females would necessarily have the last word and might perhaps stop of their own accord.

PRATTLETON'S BALLADS

Below, the second one of our series, is sung by the members of the Highland clans in Eastern Ontario, among others. It has been transplanted into Gaelic for that purpose. River Beaudette, by the way, is on the borderline between Quebec and Ontario. This manuscript was found by the police while raiding a speakeasy in Cornwall.

THE CLANKING BOTTLES

Come, good Jamie and go with me
Over the bridge to River Beaudette
Honest Pierre we must see
Over the bridge at River Beaudette
How can a feast with ginger ale
(Ontario's dry, we would it were wet!)
Do for a wedding? — so through the gale
Come let us cross at River Beaudette.

Jamie set off with his partner brave —
Down to the bridge at River Beaudette
All for the stuff his guests did crave —
Over the bridge at River Beaudette;
Joe the fisherman joined him then —
Driving his Ford, and his aim was set —
Wanted some cheer for a crowd of men
West of the bridge at River Beaudette.

Thus the part did grow in size
Off to the bridge at River Beaudette,
Speeding 'mid cheers and lusty cries,
Off to the bridge at River Beaudette,
Some for a banquet, some for a fete,
(All to make dry Ontario wet)
All with a greedy thirst to satiate,
Off to the bridge at River Beaudette.

Was there a fierce uncanny guard,
There on the bridge at River Beaudette,
With truncheon large and visage hard?
Guarding the bridge at River Beaudette
Jamie was wise and Jamie was sly
Said to him "How about something wet?"
Guard said "No," and "Try and get by!"
Over the bridge at River Beaudette.

Jamie said "No?" and "Well, we'll see,"
Over the bridge at River Beaudette;
Butted him into the icy sea,
Under the bridge at River Beaudette
Later on, as they sped along
Crash! and skid! — and now, we'll bet,
None of the gang will travel again
Over the bridge at River Beaudette.

University To Honor Smuts With Degree

lary, Music and Graduate Studies, and a number of matters were discussed. Considering the question of what classes of graduates are eligible for the degree of M.Sc., it was decided that holders of the degree of B.Sc., and in unusual cases of distinction in the medical course, M.D.s are eligible. This means that those holding the degree of B.S.A. will not be able to achieve an M.Sc. directly, being only eligible for the degree of M.S.A.

The report of a committee of the Principal and Deans in regard to a proposal to establish the degree of B.S. in Library Science was left over for future discussion. The Principal reported that progress had been made in revising the course for the degree of B.H.S. This revision involves the setting up of machinery by which the whole course for this degree might be given at Macdonald College, instead of two years in the Arts Faculty and two years at St. Anne's as is now required.

A further change in the statutes was effected in connection with the composition of corporation, it being decided to admit a representative of the school of household science, Miss Bessie M. Philip, head of the school, will thus become a member of the corporation.

A student in the faculty of applied science was expelled from the university for breach of examination rules.

The Principal Sir Arthur Currie presided at the meeting.

thought the same could not be said of the very poor, except in cases of extremely serious or advanced diseases.

In this country there is now a growing demand for the socialization of medicine, he said. In the United States a committee is now engaged in the task of making a survey of the cost of medical treatment, while in Alberta, Government travelling clinics are at work and Saskatchewan has twenty-seven municipal physicians.

The desire of the I.O.D.E. to make these scholarships of advantage to Canada as well as to the recipients, is shown in a paragraph of the memorandum sent to each of the scholars, which reads in part: "All Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire scholars shall return, if possible, to Canada to live and work there after the completion of their work in British universities."

Modern Poetry Permits Use Of Common Themes

1912, there followed a period of cheerful evasion of serious topics," maintained the speaker. Robinson was a man who played with failures in life, and actually praised the man who could not achieve his ideals, while Masters pointed out stark realism, and showed up an America in miniature.

Robert Frost, another excellent example in the free movement of American literature, shows himself as a man from the rugged states of New England, and announces his birth-place even in the rugged lines of his verse, said Klein. Carl Sandberg, he pointed out, was similar in his ideas of expression.

New Diction

"One great achievement of this period, was the evolution of a new diction, a new mode of expression, which these new poets of the people, who wrote in the language of the workman," declared Klein. "Not only did they drop the moralizing attitude of the conventional poets, but they also left behind them the very speech." Their mission was to illustrate and bring out the very soul of the vast industrial revolution which the people were encountering on every side, and they accomplished it when they chose such themes as the death of a poor foreigner in the vast heartlessness of a steel mill, stated the speaker.

"Common conception in common diction" was the keynote to the writings of these men who revolted against the dogged pursuance of old themes, pointed out the lecturer.

An animated discussion followed the talk, and it turned to the estimation of the value of the women in this crusade of freeing of poetry from its old conceptions. During the course of an answer, Klein stated that the increasing importance of women in the field came with the emancipation of the women from their household duties.

"Open Sesame!"

ALIBABA murmured the magic words, the cavern door swung open and costly treasures lay at his feet.

You, too, have an "open sesame" to the treasures of the world. It is advertising.

Read the advertising and you open the door to countless comforts and conveniences you otherwise would miss. For advertising will spread before you the product of fields, looms and factories the world over; —things that make life easier, happier, more interesting and more fruitful for you and your family.

There is no questioning the real benefits that come from regular and systematic reading of the advertising columns. No other one thing will give you such economy and keen satisfaction in every-day buying. Advertising is far too important to be overlooked.

Read it every day. It is a profitable practice

Swimmers Win By Close Score

Defeat M.A.A.A. 25 to 21 in Meet Last Night

BOURNE WINS 440

Close finishes and a score see-sawing all the way to the finish featured the swimming meet between M.A.A.A. and McGill last night when the red mermen nosed out the wheelers by a score of 25 to 21. The meet is the first of two which are held every year between the two clubs. The second will be held early in February.

After Bourne's win for McGill in the quarter, things went to M.A.A.A. fairly regularly till about half way through the meet. Then McGill staged a rally and the score gave the wheelers only one point advantage at the start of the fifty yards. Fred Shaw and Sprenger touched the rope in the centre of the tank at the finish of this race in one-two order, to practically clinch the meet.

The red and blue men still threatened, though; Alan Bourne beat his brother in the diving; and the relay was a nip and tuck affair all through, with McGill just winning in the last lap. The college second team staged a surprise by beating out the M.A.A.A. second squad for third place.

Giving three points for first place, two for second, and one for third, a departure from intercollegiate procedure, McGill came out on top with a final score of 25 points against the wheelers' 21.

Each swimmer was limited to one entry in the first six events.

The complete results are as follows:

440 Yards Free Style
M. Bourne, McGill; T. Scott, M.A.A.A. Time 5:27 2-5.

100 Yards Breaststroke
Morwood, M.A.A.A.; Austin, McGill; Brabander, McGill. Time 1:20.

200 Yards Free Style
Brophy, M.A.A.A.; Spencer, McGill; Young, M.A.A.A. Time 2:20.

100 Yards Free Style
Buckley, McGill; R. Gilday, M.A.A.A.; Crestwalt, M.A.A.A. Time 1:03 2-5.

100 Yards Backstroke
T. Gilday, M.A.A.A.; Wilson, McGill; Cross, McGill. Time 1:15 2-5.

50 Yards Free Style
P. Shaw, McGill; Sprenger, McGill; Doyle, M.A.A.A. Time 28 3-5.

Diving
A. Bourne, M.A.A.A.; M. Bourne, McGill; Jacob, McGill.

Relay
McGill (Buckley, Shaw, Sprenger, Bourne); M.A.A.A. (Scott, T. Gilday, Brophy, Bain); McGill (Spencer, Austin, Southern, Cross).

Referee: Ian McLaurin.
Timer: Doug Light.
Starters: Paul Gravel.
Judge: H. Cornforth.

It is quite possible that McGill may be forced to fall back on a team of junior swimmers in senior competition this year. Last night's meet showed that the juniors will be a reliable reserve. With three of the senior men out the remainder of the team worked hard, and just managed to pull the meet out of the fire.

Welcome Co-eds At Oxford University

Women Students Must Have Ability, However

Norman, Okla., Dec. 11.—(By Exchange Service)—Oxford, the last stronghold of masculinity, at last bids for co-eds to adorn its corridors.

Information regarding the application of senior and graduate women students to attend has been received by Emil R. Knaeth, secretary of the University of Oklahoma.

"For the past eight or nine years women have been admitted to Oxford," said Joseph A. Brandt, former Rhodes scholar, when asked about co-eds at the English school. "Altho women are not made overly welcome they are tolerated and things are made agreeable for them."

The five Oxford women's societies, Somerville College, Lady Margaret Hall, St. Hugh's College, St. Hilda's College, and the Society of Oxford Home-Students have requested that the committee on international relations of the American Association of University Women arrange at its office in New York City for applications from American women graduates desiring to study at Oxford and to forward to the principals at Oxford recommendations regarding these candidates.

The limited capacity of the societies at Oxford and the increasing number of applicants for admission make it necessary for the selection of those candidates best fitted intellectually for the Oxford courses. An ability above average and a serious intellectual purpose are requirements for admission.

Candidates must send their applications not later than March 1.

Coroner's Court

To-day's candidate for this most exalted position is none other than the rooster's hand which so ably refuses to attend the home games played by the McGill senior hockey squad. It is rumoured that this noble aggregation are intending to enter the realm of classical music. We wish them the best of success in their future undertakings, and hope that by the time the next home game rolls around after the holidays the band may have changed its mind to present themselves before the student supporters. The latter have awakened from their slumber, as was evidenced at the hockey tussle last Monday evening when, for the first time in four starts, the red puckmen heard the McGill yell spurring them on to their stellar performance.

The intercollegiate water-polo league will behave under different rules this year, with the adoption of the international code as used by M.A.A.A., Penn. A.C. and the other members of the international NEW-WATER POLO-RULES group. According to the new system introduced, play becomes cleaner from the point of view of sportsmanship as the ball can no longer be held under water necessitating uncalculated ducking. An increase in the amount of players is also found, with another man taking the position of half. There can also be no more "denuding" or tearing off of bathing suits as once happened to McGill when the red and white played at Varsity.

Since it is customary for sport critics in the United States to pick All-American squads at the end of the football season, we attempt the same procedure here, at the same time always open to receive criticism. Our selection is as follows for a first and second All-Intercollegiate football team.

First Team	Flying Wing	Second Team
Britton, Queen's	Half	Halpenny, McGill
Sinclair, Varsity	Half	Smyth, McGill
Carter, Queen's	Quarter	Bell, Varsity

SCRIBES CHOOSE MYTHICAL ALL-AMERICAN GRID ELEVEN

Sports Writers Pick Five Mid-Western and Four Eastern for National Honours—Notre Dame and Pittsburgh Each Obtain Two Berths—Albie Booth on Third Team

Sports editors and football writers of newspapers from every section of the United States—North, South, East and West—joined with coaches, officials, scouts and staff writers of The Associated Press in selecting the outstanding men in their positions throughout the nation.

Three teams were selected, the ranking being determined by the ballots. The first team honors went to the Middle West, where rugged football was the order of a great season, with five places. The East, which had one of its greatest years, placed four, with the two other positions divided between the South and the Pacific Coast.

Two great teams, Notre Dame and Pittsburgh, qualified two players each for the All-American, the first time in five years that has happened.

There was no doubt as to the selection of the quarterback when the balloting hit its full stride. Frank Carideo, "the brains of Notre Dame," moved out in front on the early returns and was never threatened. He ran up an impressive total of 123, with Alton Marsters, the injured Dartmouth star, second with 46, and little Albie Booth, Yale's spark plug, 20 points behind the Big Green quarterback.

Joe Donchess, Pittsburgh's star, was almost as convincing. He was credited with 121 points, with Wesley Fesler of Ohio State taking the other flank position with 99. No other ends menaced the position of the leaders.

Frank Tappan, Southern California, qualified for the second team with 61, along with Vernon (Catfish) Smith of Georgia, who had 29 supporters. Frank Baker of Northwestern and Wear Schoonover of Arkansas were supported by 27 and 16, respectively.

Led the Tackles
Elmer (Red) Sleight, 299-pound streak of Purdue, led all the tackles of the country with 82 choices, and another fast big man, Bronko Nagurski of Minnesota took the other tackle position with 65. Nagurski, however, was favored by 59 other close observers for fullback. He has also played end and guard at odd times.

Ted Twomey of Notre Dame and Sam Wakeman, Cornell, landed on the second team. Twomey with 56 and Wakeman scoring 55. Jap Douds, Washington and Jefferson and Fred Sington, Alabama, completed the tackles honored, with Ray Vincent of Yale barely beaten.

Jack Cannon, Notre Dame's fighting guard, showed the way in his position, with 80 choices, 30 more than Bert Schwartz of California. Ray Montgomery, Pittsburgh, and Waldo (Pirpo) Greene, Yale, were given almost identical support and ran well ahead of Jack Law of Notre Dame and Ray Farris, the versatile North Carolina guard.

Ticknor Won Award
Ben Ticknor, Harvard's busy snapper-back, won the centre award by twenty votes from Roy Riegles, California captain, whose splendid play throughout the season made the football world forget that he once ran the wrong way with the ball. Ticknor, a big, strong, roving centre, who was the defensive star of Harvard in every game, polled 83 votes for the place.

McGill Cagers Leave Tonight

College Squad Entrain for Annual American Trip

The McGill senior intercollegiate basketball team leaves tonight on their annual American trip. The McGill squad engages the University of Vermont tonight on Friday, while Middleburg College will supply the opposition on Saturday. The players who will make this trip are:—Capt. Don Young, Faulkner, Small, Polker, Rice, Moore and Weldon.

The team will be without the services of Bob Calhoun, that game defenceman, whose nose was badly injured in the exhibition game against Central "Y" last Saturday.

The squad showed great form against the City League cagers in the practice last night and should stand a good chance of winning these American College games. The team shows better shape than this time last year and have benefited by a year playing together.

The City League team although weakened by the graduation of Small and Calhoun to the intercollegiate ranks will attempt to even better their great record of last year.

Under Coach Van Wagner the squad is progressing rapidly and should present a formidable outfit by the time the league schedule opens.

Their first game is with Central "Y" seniors, an exhibition affair on the latter's floor. Everybody out on Saturday night.

Exhibits Portray Life Of Eskimo

Medical Museum Features Collections From North

PUBLIC WELCOME

The life of the Arctic Eskimo is portrayed in an interesting exhibition at the Medical Museum which among other equally entertaining collections, is open to the public. These Eskimo exhibits are particularly illustrative of the everyday life of this northern native. Many of these collections were presented by Mr. John A. Grose of Point Barrow, Alaska. They embrace a wide range of different objects pertaining to Arctic life and travel.

Many of the objects on display were fashioned before the white man's influence tended to do away with the primitive workmanship and the use of native instruments. These are also exhibits of a later date which reveal contact with the white man, both in materials and in increased efficiency of the finished article.

The Eskimo is dependent on hunting for a means of livelihood. This is evident upon observing their hunting equipment, which though crude, reveals the ingenuity, skill, and effort applied in their construction. Through necessity the Eskimo is a nomad, pitching camp wherever game conditions are favourable. Fishing is also an important work among these people. Their tackle consists of a small peg of bone or walrus ivory through which a nail is driven to serve as a hook. Several other varieties of hooks are also extensively used.

Eskimo Dress
Although the museum has not as yet any examples of the Eskimo's decorative outer garments, three suits of under garments are open to public inspection. Like his white brother the Eskimo is not immune from worldly vanities. Vegetable matter, berries, and even salmon eggs, are used for the dyes with which he colours his clothes and other belongings. The materials usually employed in the making of clothing are reindeer hide and sealskin. Except in severe weather, two suits are worn. The inner garment has the hair turned inside while the outer suits are worn with the hair outside.

Perhaps the most interesting article on exhibition is a stone-knife. It is a treasure both on account of its age and finish, and must have entailed a vast amount of time and labour. Copper knives and flint scrapers for the dressing of hides are also on view. Copper is abundant in some sections of the north and the Eskimos have long been acquainted with its uses. A snow-knife is also to be seen. This knife plays a major part in the construction of the igloo or snow-house. With it, large blocks of snow can be cut.

Cooking Spoils Meat
Cooking does not offer a serious problem with regard to the fuel supply. The Eskimo eats his food raw, for in his opinion cooking spoils the meat. The igloo is heated by the means of a soap-stone lamp. This stone is easily worked and is common throughout the north. The lamp is a flat, hollowed out dish, in which the oil is placed. A wick consisting of fibre, known as Arctic sponge, is placed partly in the oil, and is ignited by a flint lighter.

An interesting example of an Eskimo rattle may be seen among other articles. The accessory prongs of caribou hoofs are used. These are strung separately on individual thongs which are tied together at the free end. Bird quill is also strung on these things so that a more distinct sound may be heard.

Eskimo Carving
The average Eskimo delights in carving. The quality of their skill is amazing as may be observed from their work in wood, bone, and walrus ivory. The latter predominates. The best ivory carvings come from the Alaskan districts. Pipes, spoons, and similar articles are often elaborately decorated. Fish, dogs, and other familiar forms, serve as models in these designs and figureheads. The Eskimos' love for their children finds outlet in much of this work. Many toys are fashioned—dolls included. The latter are often clothed in complete Eskimo attire; and diminutive lamps and other toys bring happiness to the young natives. These people have a knowledge of pottery, but this work is not commonly found among them. However it is interesting to note that their pottery resembles that of the African native.

It has been prophesied that the day is not far off when the manufacture of these articles shall become a lost art; for the Eskimo of today gave in remote districts, is in close contact with civilization. This is especially true of the Alaskan Eskimo and true of the tribes ranging eastward to Coronation Gulf. The advent of the white-trader and the resultant introduction of high-powered rifles, launches, gramophones etc., spell ruin for the old-time native life. Many of the white man's inventions have afforded the Eskimo superior equipment for the hunt, and as a result some have become wealthy. In all probability, the next generation will be entirely dependent upon civilization.

To Feature College Beauties In Annual

To Conduct Special Contest for Indiana "Arbutus"

Bloomington, Ind. Dec. 11. (By Exchange Service)—Six of Indiana university's most beautiful coeds will be given places of honor in the 1930 Arbutus, according to Max M. Sappenfield, '30, editor. Each of the six coeds chosen will be given a full page picture in the feature section of the 1930 issue of the book.

The coeds will be selected by a group of judges not connected with the University. The judges will be men who have become famous as artists or writers of college life. Sappenfield said. Distinctive types of beauty will be disregarded in selecting the six coeds, according to the editor. All the coeds chosen will be selected on the same basis. About 25 candidates are expected to be nominated for the competition, Sappenfield said Thursday. Each sorority will nominate one candidate, although several organizations have announced their intentions of putting up two candidates.

The judges will announce their decisions some time in March. The six winners, however, will not be announced publicly until the Arbutus is ready for distribution. The names of the judges will be announced within a few weeks.

Talk On Mediaeval Manuscripts Given

Slides Made From McGill Collection Shown

"In mediaeval times, the monasteries which were widely spread all over Europe and England were the book producing centres of the world," said Dr. G. R. Lamer, librarian of McGill University, yesterday afternoon at the monthly meeting of the local Council of Women in the Parish Hall of St. James the Apost's Church. Lantern slides illustrated the lecture on mediaeval manuscripts and their production and care, some of which were made by a special process of colour photography from original manuscripts in the Redpath Library. The lecturer indicated the general characteristics of the period and described in detail the monasteries where the manuscripts were produced. He then explained how they were written, illuminated and bound, and showed illustrations of the quill pens, ink horns, desks, and colouring materials. The customs and regulations of the early monastic libraries proved interesting and the monastery gardens showed the derivation of many of the designs in the illuminations.

FRESHMEN NEED NOT PHONE 'HER'

Dating Bureau Aids U. of W. Newcomers

Seattle, Dec. 11—Adding demure and bashful yearling men, the fresh dating bureau at the University of Washington is a boon to mankind these days as far as shyly blushing freshmen are concerned.

It is very easy for the self-conscious frosh to go up to the dating bureau and ask for the "girl of his dreams", when one considers that up to this year he had either to stammer to her on the phone, to his infinite discomfort and embarrassment, or stay home.

The dating bureau has a list of every freshman, the complexion, height, weight and preference of each one, so that there is ample field for selection for the most bashful frosh.

PROM MODES

If there is one night of this fast-fading year that a Junior will want to look her loveliest and smartest it will be Friday night. Gay Prom fashions in satin, moires, flat crepes... bewitching with "new silhouette" contours... are in our Third Floor Sections. The prices, being EATON, are as attractive as the most limited budget could wish. In the Sub-Deb Department you will discover delightful frocks with just enough of the ingenue — and that new sophistication that Paris demands in evening dress design. In the Misses' Department sizes 14 to 20 appear in a profusion of loveliness and modishness. Come in today if only for the joy of looking at them...
